Dr. Bruce K. Haddon earned his Doctorate at the University of Colorado, in Electrical Engineering. He has been, over the last two decades or so, Director of the University Computing Centre, Sydney, Australia; Associate Professor at the University of Colorado; Vice-President of a leading localization company; but, leading to his being here, has held leading technology positions with Storage Technology Corporation, Redcape Software, Inc., and Sun Microsystems, Inc., in which roles he has been associated with the Storage System Standards Working Group, the Storage Network Industry Association, and the Distributed Management Task Force. He is currently the Principal Editor of the IEEE Standard 1244.2, and a Senior Java Architect with Sun Microsystems Professional Services.